

If I could visit any place in the world, it would be Japan. I would visit Japan because of the intriguing cars they drive, the animation studios which produce all of the anime shows that we kids watch on television, and because of the different assortment of foods they have there. These are my three reasons I would like to visit Japan.

All of the different types of cars that they produce are very interesting. They produce the Toyota Trucks, which aren't very efficient but they do make excellent getaway cars in case of emergencies. They also produce some of the smaller more compact cars, which are pretty much like the trucks except that they run faster. I like all of the different types of motorcycles that they produce. Their motorcycles are a whole lot faster than the truck or the cars.

In Japan, all of the anime shows that you see on television like for example, Naruto, and The Misaki Chronicles and many more are produced in Japan inside of the Animation Studios. Someday, I would like to meet one of the animators for one of the shows, or an actor who plays the voice of my favorite character in the show. Maybe I could even be the voice for one of the characters in the show. Just imagine all of the rooms in one of the studios, it would be like walking around a mansion!

Japan has some of the best foods available. They have all of the assortments that we have in America plus probably a few extra particular types that only they know how to grow. They probably have some fruit that is so secret, that they would do anything to keep the government away from the fruit. It would be like our Area 51. We don't know if it's real or not. Japanese people also have a way of sweetening their fruit so that it tastes like you're in Heaven, drifting away on a cloud.

I would like to visit Japan because of the fascinating transportation like the cars and the motorcycles along with the trucks, the animation studios because I love anime and would like to get to see them animate the shows, and last but not least the different assortments of food for the sweet taste that's irresistible.

Score Point: 5

This response reflects a strong degree of proficiency in expository writing skills. The writer selects Japan as a place to visit and cites three reasons for this choice (the cars, the animation studios, and the food). The reasons are explained, coherently developed, and organized. The response is generally free from errors in writing conventions. Facility in language use is exhibited (intriguing cars, which aren't very efficient, and like walking around in a mansion). The response would benefit from more specific details illustrating the food and greater syntactic variety. In addition, the introduction and conclusion are somewhat repetitive.